

Integration Point, Inc. Named to the SupplyChainBrain Great Supply Chain Partner List for 2010
Award received due to nominations from companies that are using Integration Point solutions to improve supply chain efficiency and global trade compliance

Charlotte, NC, July 27, 2010 – Over 2,800 nominations covering various industries were submitted by companies – large and small – nominating vendors and service providers whose technology, logistics, transportation or consulting services has made a significant impact on their company's efficiency and overall supply chain performance. The result – the 2010 100 Great Supply Chain Partner list, which includes Integration Point, Inc., a provider of global trade compliance and management solutions, has been published by SupplyChainBrain magazine.

The purpose of the 100 Great Supply Chain Partner list is to recognize those vendors that have so impressed their customers with not only the technology provided but also customer service, that they should be held out as an example for others in the industry. The list is a culmination of responses gathered during a 6-month poll of readers of SupplyChainBrain, and is a clear indication that companies are looking for vendors/partners that can help them succeed in cost savings, productivity improvements, inventory management and savings. Integration Point customers also referred to increased visibility and compliance in their import/export processes.

“Our mission at Integration Point is to provide our customers with a global trade network that integrates enterprise, supply chain and regulatory knowledge from around the world on a single web-based platform,” said Clay Perry, Senior Vice President – Global Markets at Integration Point, Inc. “To receive this award because our customers see us as a valued partner in their supply chain is a great honor. Integration Point looks forward to continuing to provide the best technology and customer service to our customers.”
