

Integration Point Denied Trade Screening Solution Provides Additional Searching Capabilities for Exporters

Charlotte, NC, January 22, 2009 -- Integration Point®, a trade compliance software provider, announced today new searching capabilities for its Denied Trade Screening Solution. The Integration Point Denied Trade Screening (DTS) Solution provides export screening for more than just denied parties; the screening can also include embargoed countries or restricted products providing exporters a comprehensive search for all types of denied parties. The new DTS capability, called recursive searching, provides exporters a tool to quickly build complex searches to easily identify specific screening results.

Companies can use the recursive searching feature to easily pinpoint the exact company or person they are trying to locate within a list of search results. Similar to building blocks, users can create complex search strings to pinpoint exact results from a history of past searches.

Recursive searching is a key feature to have when Customs requires a company to show that "Reasonable Care" has been demonstrated when screening exports. A customer success story about Eastern Shipping Worldwide's use of the Integration Point DTS solution can be found at www.IntegrationPoint.com.

Automating the export screening process with the Integration Point DTS Solution allows the exporter to:

- Scan multiple control lists (over 80) from around the world
- Perform both phonetic (metaphone or soundex) and exact searches through complex algorithms ensuring the most accurate results
- Screen and record foreign national visitors to office and manufacturing locations
- Enhance company compliance programs
- Reduce risks of violations, fines and imprisonment
- Ensure company is demonstrating "Reasonable Care" when performing export screening
- Access up-to-date and new control lists on-demand

"The Integration Point DTS Solution is more than just screening for denied persons," said Ken Peters, Director – Global Solutions at Integration Point, Inc. "Our comprehensive solution provides companies with the security of knowing that a complete screening – people, products and countries — of their exports has been done. With this new feature, the DTS Solution provides companies with an easy way to build complex searches to quickly identify past searching results when asked.”
